From the world's leading expert on how to frighten children

How to scare the HELL out of trick-or-treaters

...so they'll NEVER come back to your house again!

By BRENDA CARLTON / Weekly World News

WASHINGTON — You can scare trick-or-treaters so badly they'll NEVER come back to your house with five great tips from a leading expert.

All you have to do is get over any reluctance you might have of terrifying kids who innocently ring your doorbell expecting a smiling face and a handful of candy.

Once you've made your point, word will spread like wildfire — and you'll have Halloween nights all to yourself from now on.

"Halloween is a wonderful holiday and a great cause for celebration but trick-or-treating is an anachronism — something we basically should have stopped back in the 1960s," said Rose Margaret, a clinical psychologist who has a keen interest in how people celebrate and respond to holidays.

"Since the government won't ban the holiday, more and more people are ready willing and able to take matters into their own hands. I'm not suggesting that anyone actually hurt a child," she continued. "Scare, yes. Hurt, no."

Here are five tried and true methods for scaring kids away from your house on Halloween night.

Rose Margaret

1. Slide in the bushes on your front lawn — and spray trick-or-treaters with your garden hose. "They don't like it," said Mrs. Margaret, "especially if it's cold outside."

2. Answer your door when kids ring the bell — with a big piece of raw liver or a cow tongue in your hand. "This sort of thing terrifies kids," said the expert. "Especially if it's dripping blood."

3. When kids ring the doorbell, fire a cap pistol or blank gun, scream — then answer the door with ketchup or chocolate syrup dripping from your forehead.

It looks like blood — and will horrify them.

4. Purchase an inexpensive "sound effects" tape at any music store.

Be sure it has the sound of snarling, barking Doberman pinschers — and play it full blast on your stereo when trick-or-treaters knock on your door.

5. When kids knock, answer the door with a bowl of animal brains, available from any butcher in your hands.

Be sure to tell the kids to close their eyes, reach in and take plenty — and they'll NEVER come back again!

GET RID OF PESKY TRICK-OR-TREATERS by following these simple tips from an expert.

WARNING: These techniques are effective, but might be illegal — and could land you in jail. Consult a lawyer before you do anything to scare a child.

OLD HALLOWEEN COSTUMES ARE WORTH BIG BUCKS!

Sheets and goblins in your attic could be worth a monstrous amount of money — if those scary characters are old Halloween masks and costumes!

Halloween memorabilia, especially items inspired by 1960s TV shows, have become so valuable to collectors . . . it's spooky.

An Ansle Oakley costume sells for $225, a costume portraying Morticia of The Addams Family goes for $230, and a Green Hornet or The Addams Family napkin, reports David Welch, an official copyright expert.

Weekly World News

"Baby boomers grew up with these shows and loved them immensely. They'll pay $100 to $300 for one of these."

Here is a sampling of items and their price tags:

COSTUMES — Ansle Oakley, $225; Dick Tracy, $80; Batman (1966) $200; Doctor Doom, $95; Elvis the Cat, $120; Man of the (from 1965) $465; Mad magazine's Alfred E. Neuman, $35; Donald Duck (from the 1930s), $85; Haunted Minister, $45; Jimmy Carter, $45; paper-mache pumpkin mask, $2,000.

MEMORABILIA — Neon jack-o-lantern (sign), $400.

If you have a Halloween item that you think might be valuable, you can sell it through a newspaper ad or by taking it to a flea market.

PUPPY LOVE: Little Billy Abrigo, 3, rides his pet cockapoo Elmer a lot.

Vets credit little hero with saving pup's life!

By ANN VICTORIA/Weekly World News

BILOXI, Miss. — Three-year-old Billy Abrigo saved his little dog's life when he started the family car, put it in gear — and drove the sick pup two miles down the road to an animal hospital!

The boy's mother was in the backyard tending her garden when the 5-month-old cockapoo, Elmer, began vomiting and convulsing. Vets later confirmed that the dog was suffering from a serious infection and would have died without immediate treatment.

BELIEVED: The Abrigos, Doralee and Marshall, gave

Apparently the toddler reached up and lifted the car keys off the dining room table.

He carried the dog out, switched on the ignition and dropped the automatic shift into 'drive.'

Cops say the boy knelt on the seat and steered, allowing the car to creep along under the power of the idling engine.

and told her to come and pick the boy up, she still couldn't believe it.

"I knew he knew where the pet hospital was," says Doralee Abrigo, 31. "I always pointed it out when we passed. But I had no idea he even knew how to start a car, much less steer."

When Billy arrived at the pet hospital, he drove the red Honda Civic up against the curb where it bogged — half on, half off — and stopped. The boy then carried Elmer onto the emergency room door — just in time.

"The animal was very dehydrated and was running a high fever," said the vet. "We medicated him and gave him plenty of liquids."

Elmer was released three days later, healthy as a horse, whether to scold him or reward him for his resourcefulness. I just sat him down and said, 'You did a very brave and clever thing, son — but don't ever do it again!'"

MAN STOPS TO PRAY AT STRANGER'S COFFIN — AND ENDS UP A MULTI-MILLIONAIRE!

By BILL GIST
Roving Correspondent
Weekly World News

A MOMENT OF PRAYER earns lone mourner Eduardo Sierra $4 million.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — A humble, poor man became a multi-millionaire overnight — because he stopped at a church to pray beside a stranger's coffin.

The down-on-his-luck mourner did not know, when he took the time to offer a simple prayer, that the dead man was a friendless real estate tycoon whose will stated that his fortune go to anyone who came to pay his respects.

The amazing story began when Eduardo Sierra, 38, a devoutly religious man walked into a Catholic church for his daily period of prayer and meditation. The church was empty except for a coffin containing the body of a man.

Sierra did not know the man but the Spanish businessman, who had come to Sweden seeking work in the auto industry, believed in the dignity and divinity of every human soul. So he took several moments to ask that God deliver the stranger's soul to Heaven and that He forgive the dead man's sins.

"I didn't know the fellow," Sierra later told reporters. "But I felt really that no one was there mourning for him. I thought, 'No matter what kind of mistakes he may have made in life, everyone deserves to have someone pray for their soul.'"

On his way out, the destitute Sierra saw a condolence book — a ruler that churches leave for mourners to sign.

"I wasn't going to sign it, since I'd never met the man," says Sierra. "But I noticed that there wasn't a single name in the book. It made me so sad. I just couldn't leave the book completely empty like that."

So Sierra filled in his name and address and left the church.

After an unsuccessful bid to find a job, Sierra returned to his Barcelona home two weeks later, almost down to his last dollar.

"A letter from the Swedish government was waiting for me," says Sierra. "When I opened it and read it, I thought it must be some kind of mistake. It was official notification that I had been left the entire estate of a man named Jens Svenson — a name totally unfamiliar to me."

But incredibly there was no mistake. Svenson was the stranger whose soul Sierra had prayed for.

Lars Knudsen, Svenson's personal attorney, explained: "Mr Svenson was rich beyond belief. But he had a harsh, abrasive manner that turned people off. I dare say the man never had a friend in his entire life and all his family was dead.

"But believe it or not, he wasn't really a bad person.

"Just weeks before his passing from prostate cancer — he knew he was dying — he came to me and asked that I make out a will for him that would give his entire estate to anyone who came to mourn him when he died. If no one came, the money was to go to charity."

After taxes, Sierra stands to collect about $4 million. He said half the money will go to a program to help the homeless.

"All good things come from God," said the new millionaire. "And I think He'll be

DON'T divorce and things will eventually work out, says new study!

By R. NEALE LIND Weekly World News

If you're not hitting it off with your spouse, don't pull the plug on your marriage until you read this:

A brand-new study shows that couples who stay together get along better as they age — even if they hated each other's guts in the early stages of their marriages!

Experts from the University of California at Berkeley, Stanford University and the University of Washington studied 156 couples of various ages. They've concluded that, just like fine wine, marriages mellow with age.

"You develop the ability not to lose sight of the love in the relationship and to express it," says study spokesman Dr. Robert Levenson.

"Even among unhappy couples, there is greater affection among older couples when they argue than among younger couples."

The research project contrasted couples in their mid-40s who had been married at least 15 years with couples in their mid-50s married 35 years or more.

Dr. Levenson stops short of saying that growing older will transform your relationship from hellish warfare to heavenly bliss. But he does say that something about the aging process seems to make a husband and wife more emotionally stable as they age.

But before it or not, people don't become less emotional with age. The difference between "experienced" and younger couples is that the couples who have been together awhile don't turn their emotions against each other.

The new study runs completely against the grain of research done in the 1930s and 1960s that indicated that marital satisfaction declined as people aged.

Bottom line: If the one you married doesn't light up your life anymore, just hang on. That special glow will probably come back.

Judge sentences guilty man to five minutes' probation!

HARRISBURG, Pa. — A man who beat up a guy he caught in bed with his girlfriend was found guilty in court and sentenced to probation — for five minutes!

Even YOU can be sexier — right now!

You can boost your sex appeal — and improve your opportunities for romance or make your marriage more exciting — by following tried-and-true tips.

"These techniques to increase sex appeal are based on studies of human attractiveness," said psychologist Dr. Robert Phillips.

"True sex appeal goes beyond surface beauty — it's an inner quality that can be developed." Here's what Dr. Phillips suggests:

By KELLY FRANCES
Weekly World News

✓Agree with others — "People think others are more attractive when they agree with them," Dr. Phillips said.

"That doesn't mean you shouldn't express your own opinion. But find things you can agree on and keep the conversation focused on those topics."

✓Smile — "Studies show those who smile more look better. A smile lights up your face and tells others you're approachable," said Dr. Phillips, co-author of the new book Love Factors.

✓Modulate your voice tones — "Men who speak with mellow, rich calm tones and women who speak with friendly, pleasant, caring tones appear more attractive, studies show," he said.

✓Stand tall — "When you first meet someone, shake hands. After that, touch people when you feel the time is right. If you want to make a point during a conversation, for example, touch the other person lightly on the arm to emphasize what you're saying."

✓Let the other person talk — Listening enhances your sexual attractiveness. "Ask people about their background, their job, their goals, their family. Then show a sincere interest in what they say.

"When you focus on another person, they'll almost inevitably be impressed with how bright, sexy and intelligent you are," said Dr. Phillips.

YOU don't have to look like model Elaine Hopkins to be sexy.

✓Understate your welcome — "We all want what we can't have — and a good way to improve your sex appeal is to make yourself less than totally available," Dr. Phillips pointed out.

"Don't be the first to arrive at a party or the last to leave. End a visit or a phone conversation before the other person does. Cut encounters short of what's expected and you'll find yourself in demand."

SICKO TEEN CHOPS OFF BOY'S HEAD

SPARTA, Mich. — A sicko 16-year-old was arrested after decapitating a runaway teen — and then making a video of himself mutilating the head in his bedroom!

. . . and takes it to a party, say cops

Incredibly, cops say bloodthirsty high school dropout Federico Cruz passed the gore video around to a half-dozen pals over several days before one youngster's dad finally caught sight of the homemade horror tape and called police.

"Cruz even took the head itself in a basket to a party attended by about 250 kids. He showed it to several of them — but they did nothing about it," said Lt. William Burden of the Kent County Sheriff's Office. "Apparently, they didn't believe it was real."

By MIKE FORSYTH
Weekly World News

Authorities used dental records to identify victim David Lee Crawford, 17, who had vanished from a center for emotionally troubled youngsters the day of his murder. Cruz has confessed to following the other youth along a railroad track, bludgeoning him, then dumping the body in a swamp a few hundred yards from his house. "He has admitted beheading the individual and making the video of himself mutilating the head with a large knife — but we have no idea what his motive was," said Lt. Burden.

In the video, Cruz — masked by a blue bandanna and clad in a black sweatshirt, sunglasses, a black ski cap and leather gloves — carves the head with a butcher knife and removes the brain.

He spent the next several days wearing local teens with the tape.

Finally, Elias Vasquez Jr., the father of one of the killer's pals, learned that his son had it in his possession. Stunned, he gave the video to police. Cops later found the head wrapped in plastic outside the Cruz family home.

"It was sitting right outside the boy's bedroom window in the backyard," said lawman Burden.

"The boy's parents had been totally unaware of his activities."

Cruz was charged with murder, but psychologists have found him incompetent to stand trial.

"He's been sent to a mental health facility," said Lt. Burden.

REVA
The hidden
DR

LOS ANGELES — You can find health, wealth, love, luck, happiness and even foresee your own future by studying your dreams and finding their hidden meanings, an electrifying new Harvard study reveals.

And learning to find those hidden meanings is both easy and fun, the university researchers say.

All you have to do is pay attention to your dreams and ponder the images and events that occur in them.

In no time at all, you'll find that your subconscious mind is providing you with all the insights you need to take control of your life — and succeed beyond your wildest dreams.

"Dreams are not only vitally important to our mental, physical and spiritual health, they actually foretell our futures — and show us the way to find and keep happiness," declares Dr. Rhonda Polke, who relied heavily on the study while writing her forthcoming book, Dreams Are Not a Life.

"I can tell you stories about people who have used dreams to get rich, to banish disease, to find luck, to boost their careers — just about anything you can think of.

"The first step is to recognize the importance and validity of dreams. Once you've done that, you're on your way.

"And don't think I'm a voice crying in the wilderness, because I'm not. Hundreds of leading researchers and experts have reached the same conclusion. That's why the study of dreams has become red hot.

"For the first time in history, dreams are being recognized for the incredible significance they hold for us."

Here, from the Harvard study and Dr. Polke's new book, are some innovative ways to use your dreams to find health, wealth, love, luck and happiness.

You'll also find tips to help you interpret dreams and dream imagery — and learn how your subconscious is trying to help you.

● Interpreting dreams. The first thing you have to understand is that dream imagery is specific to you. Auto, for example, might horrify some people — but fascinate you.

When analyzing your dreams, forget dream books that interpret images generally — and think about what the images mean to you. You'll find, probably for the first time in your life, that your dreams are making sense — and have real meaning for you.

● Dreams that warn you of deadly illness. Several types of dreams can warn you of illness, often months or even years in advance. Be wary if you dream of insects or bugs of any kind on or in your body. Also, dreams of blindness, paralysis or in which you feel pain are a good indication that your health is in jeopardy.

Often you will dream of a specific illness that, even though you have no symptoms at the time, is a health problem to come.

If the dreams recur, discuss them with a doctor right away.

● Dreams that let you see your first — or next — true love. Recurring dreams of any kind are powerful omens and can even foretell your future — and show you friends or lovers to come.

If you regularly dream of the opposite sex, for example, and can't identify the person, you're probably dreaming about your future mate.

When you have these dreams, write them down, describing the person in as much detail as possible. When you finally meet him, you'll know it's time to make your move — if he doesn't do it first!

● Dreams that tell you how to get rich. Any dreams dealing with inventions or business or career concerns are trying to tell you how to make money. Most successful inventors, businessmen and women, or even all of their wealth is the result of ideas that came to them in dreams. Many lottery winners will tell you the same thing. If you dream of lucky numbers, use them to cash in!

● Dreams that foretell changes on the job. These dreams can be obvious, but as often as not, you'll have to do considerable interpreting to find out their true meaning.

dream that a co-worker is suddenly promoted and becomes your boss.

Often, this dream really means that you have the chance to be promoted yourself — if you take the initiative and press for the recognition you deserve.

● Dreams that show you the future. Any dream that puts you in a setting and scenario significantly different

This could very well be showing her what the future holds for her.

When a dream strikes you as foretelling the future, trust your instincts — and really think about it.

you might have to make some decisions now that will help bring it to pass.

For example, dreaming of a tornado probably indicates that you are going to experience turbulence in your life, while dreaming of an earth-

The do's and don'ts of touching other people!

By ROB CUNNINGHAM, Weekly World News

Knowing when to touch someone can make or break your relationship, says a psychiatrist, who lists her 10 commandments of touching.

(1) Do touch when you are greeting your good friends. Touching says, "We've experienced a lot together. It's great to see you again," said Dr. Mary Ann Bartusis.

(2) Do not touch someone until you've established a relationship with them. Every one has their own private space — and you shouldn't violate it until you've become friends.

(3) Do touch when you want to say you're sorry. Reach out and touch the person's arm lightly. It reinforces your apology.

(4) Do touch when a person needs encouragement.

Shake their hand or give them a pat on the back — it gives them a sense of security and will give their confidence a boost.

(5) Don't touch someone who wants to be alone. Everyone needs time alone to organize their thoughts.

(6) Do not touch people who's engrossed in a task. You'd be interrupting them and they'd probably be quite annoyed.

(7) Don't touch someone who's in physical pain. They'll be hypersensitive because any contact hurts with your touch.

(8) Do touch when you want to express feelings of togetherness. Give your partner a side-by-side hug. It says, "We're equals. We're in this together."

(9) Do touch a person when you're upset. That's good comforting and touch will say, "I'm sorry. I'm sorry. I'm sorry."

(10) Do touch when you want to shape your environment. When you're feeling elated, give your partner a big bear hug. It's a great way to spread your happiness.

CONTENTED COWS

NEWPORT, Wash. — Many farmers are providing their cows with luxuries like color TV, serene pastel wallpaper, fine paintings and even live string quartets to play them classical music.

"The more we pamper the cows, the higher quality and greater quantity of milk they give," said one dairy farmer. "It's well worth the price to give them the best."

Most gals have shouted out a former lover's name during sex!

WASHINGTON — An eye-popping new survey proves it is beyond the shadow of a doubt. Three of five married women have shouted out the name of a former sweetheart while making love with their husbands.

Q Was supermodel Cindy Crawford upset by a segment on ABC's PrimeTime Live that showed a 10-year-old boy becoming sexually aroused by her exercise video?

— Jack J. Queens, N.Y.

A The report was about the way sex on TV affects children. In it, a 10-year-old watched a body video and asked for her to take off that sweat suit. Cindy told PEOPLE she was saddened to see the piece. "I'm in an industry which kind of gives them these images. I watched the show and realized, 'Oh my God, I didn't do the legs for that reason,' " says Cindy.

EYEWITNESS ACCOUNTS CONFIRM RELIGIOUS EXPERT'S WARNING...

Real-life demons will stalk our children this Halloween!

By LISA MERIANS / Weekly World News

BOSTON — A worried author and religious expert has a chilling warning for trick-or-treaters: Demons are real and they roam our streets on Halloween!

Dr. Cedric W. Challoner says he's assembled shocking statistics and eyewitness accounts that prove a host of Satan's helpers are abroad on that frenetic holiday and they are the reason hundreds of children turn up missing around that time of year.

"Authorities don't want us to know the severity of the problem because they don't want a national panic," says Dr. Challoner, whose book Evil Walks Our Streets is timed to hit the bookstores just as Halloween.

"But it's clear something terrible is happening as the trusting kids we send out trick-or-treating — something that can only be explained as the work of the Devil."

According to Dr. Challoner, an incredible 153 American children went out in their costumes on Oct. 31, 1986 — and disappeared forever.

Another 321 reported encountering "demonic creatures with supernatural strength."

"What is especially shocking is that the surviving children described almost the identical creature — a towering, 6-foot figure wearing the costume of a devil or demon," Dr. Challoner said.

"And 87 percent of the children said the demon appeared suddenly in front of them, as though he had materialized out of thin air. Then when something seemed to interrupt the demon's actions, the creature vanished just as mysteriously.

"These accounts are bolstered by eyewitnesses who watched as a giant demon-type creature snatched unlisted small children away — only to learn later that those children had turned up missing.

"The witnesses also agree in their description of the demon."

Dr. Cedric Challoner

In his book, Dr. Challoner argues that many Halloween crimes are the work of these demons, who prowl dimly lit city streets looking for victims and perhaps "children that repeat in English.

"A demon figure was spotted just before someone set fire to an elderly lady's house in Philadelphia last Halloween, and another was seen on a Los Angeles street pass dimly lighted alleys as a woman dressed a costumed child on a rope," Dr. Challoner says.

"Such children are frighteningly common on Halloween.

Fortunately, Dr. Challoner has helpful advice on how to protect children from the demonic beings who roam their streets every Halloween.

Only continued on another page.

"Kids should also be discouraged from going out on Halloween with capital guns and other weapons that could be used by demons to harm them.

MY AMERICA

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas — & it makes me mad as HELL!

I'm madder than Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer with hoof and mouth disease — because it already looks like Christmas Eve in the shopping malls!

We haven't even gotten over Halloween, for crying out loud. By the time Christmas Day comes, kids are so sick of Santa and the elves they could vomit.

I know the stores have got to push the merchandise now that it's official we're in the Second Great Depression, but gimme a break!

And what really makes me so pig-hating mad is today's kids don't know what it was like in the good old days.

Why, I remember Christmas of 1964 when my son Jimbo and daughter Sara Lee were kids.

You didn't see a Christmas display in the stores until December 15 — and even that was early.

Back in those days, kids pressed their noses against toy department store windows to watch the electric trains or eyeball a shiny new Hula Hoop or Mr. Potato Head.

And that was on Christmas Eve, for Pete's sake!

Those were the days when the carpenters piled into the back of the old Ford Galaxie station wagon and headed for the tree lot just a week before Christmas — not a week before Thanksgiving.

I remember dragging that tree with colorful old bubble lights that used to explode when they got too hot.

And how Sara Lee cried all day when Santa left her her first Beatles album.

And that was the same Christmas that the Green Bay Packers cut their meal cleats into the breast hides of Lambeau Field and drove every bone in the Dallas Cowboys' bodies. Then, Merry Christmas, Dallas!

And what about The Jersey Boys singing "Oh, What a Night" and "Rag Doll" and "Big Girls Don't Cry"? They even wrote a song about how you don't even think about Christmas until December 11 — at the earliest!

Buy somebody a partridge in a pear tree on today's "first day of Christmas" and the doctor bills would be dealt by Pearl Harbor Day.

Sorry, but this year? The Angermeister is going to have an old-fashioned 1964 holiday season — and that means not buying one single present until Christmas Eve.

A WOMAN SCORNED!

Vindictive gal turns love rival's life into living hell!

CRIME: Kitty Tiebe launched her reign of terror from prison after she was convicted of harassing her former boyfriend

During her two-year reign of terror, this jealous wacko:

- Called her 1,000s of times
- Made death threats
- Spread smelly cheese on her car
- Let roosters loose in her home
- Yelled obscene insults

By JOE BERGER

NEW YORK CITY — Vicious Kitty Tiebe turned her love rival's life into a living hell by phoning the shaken lady thousands of times in the middle of night, bellowing obscenities, blasting a police whistle in her ear — and even threatening to blow her away!

But that's just the beginning. During a two-year reign of terror, vindictive Kitty 31 also harassed hapless Angela DeMarello by:

● Ripping it crawling, crapping roosters in her apartment.

● Sending dozens of unwanted gas plumbers, insurance salesmen, exterminators, taxicabs and TV repairmen to her home at all hours of the day and night.

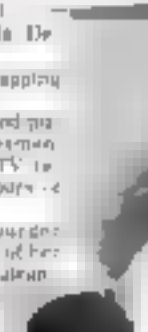
● Spreading smelly Limburger cheese on the exhaust manifold of her brand new Buick — leaving the steaming car reeking to high heaven for more than a month.

"That woman made my life a nightmare," recalled frantic Angela, 29.

"I was scared to death every minute of the night and day because I just had no idea what she might do next."

Sadistic Kitty launched her relentless reign of terror two years ago when Angela began dating her former boyfriend, bartender Greg Galecki.

"Greg and Kitty had gone together before. I don't know why she did it, but she obviously blamed me for breaking them up because she started harassing me almost from the minute he and I started going out. I'm not a hell-raiser. I'm a peaceful person, but she just terrorized Angela and a number of other people."



ABOVE: Angela DeMarello became the object of a terror campaign when she began dating Greg Galecki, left

Kitty — who is 5-foot-10 and 200 pounds — terrorized her victim for almost a year.

"She screamed at me and blew that damn whistle in my ear all the time. I almost went deaf. She was going to get a gun and blow me off the face of the Earth.

"Besides that, she sent a real pain guy or a cab driver or an insurance salesman or some creep to my door every single night just to bug the hell out of me.

"And it worked. I'll tell you, I'm not the same person I was before I met her. I'm a nervous wreck. I'm always afraid she's going to do something else to me. I'm always looking over my shoulder. I'm always afraid she's going to jump out at me from behind a car or a tree. I'm always afraid she's going to kill me."

Angela's ordeal eventually ended when cops got the goods on the California fugitive and a judge placed her on probation for harassment.

"I wasn't trying to be spiteful," the curly-haired beauty explained to the court. "I just wanted to run her out of town so Greg would come back to me."

HOW SWEET IT IS! ICE CREAM BEATS STRESS

By JENNIFER BROOKES / Weekly World News

Ice cream is a great natural stress reliever, say experts!

"The milk in ice cream contains L-tryptophan, a natural and effective tranquilizer," said Dr. James Hodge.

"It helps individuals with sleep problems get a good night's rest.

"And ice cream is soft and smooth and as easily digestible as mother's milk. No wonder millions of Americans turn to ice cream when they're upset."

What's more, ice cream is related to many of our best "good time" experiences — such as birthday parties, family celebrations, holiday festivities and teenage dating, said Dr. Leon Salzman.

"Just the thought of ice cream triggers our fondest memories, carrying us back to childhood when we were safe and secure and free of present day responsibilities.

"Taking time out for an ice-cream treat is a great way to relax when you're all tensed up.

"Ice cream is smooth, rich and creamy and imparts a feeling of loveliness, 'soulful' well-being."

And Dr. Ralph Slovenko declared: "An ordinance of ice cream's stress-relieving quality is the presence of hostile confrontations in places where ice cream is served.

"I've surveyed more than 20 ice-cream parlor workers and managers and have yet to find one report that an argument or fight happened in these establishments.

"Even children, while anxiously waiting for their parents, are often given ice cream to relieve their anxiety.

"And many hospitals find that ice cream has a calming effect on patients and serve it as a supplement to tranquilizers.

"For most of us, ice cream represents security, cleanness and comfort, and provides a simple cure for the woes of life."

ICE-CREAM SUNDAE contains L-tryptophan, a natural and effective tranquilizer.

Line-dancing snakes

CAIRO, Egypt — Scientists are trying to explain the phenomenon occurring at "The Valley of the Dancing Snakes" — a spot on the Nile where hundreds of king cobras periodically line up and move in rhythm with one another for up to 20 minutes!

"It happens about once a month," said herpetologist Dr. Mustafa Khalil. "We believe it may be some kind of mating ritual but we're not sure."

INCREDIBLE PROOF!

Boy brought back to life by spirit of his dead dog

By HAROLD MURPHY [illegible]

In an uncanny out-of-body experience, a drowned 7-year-old boy from Billings, Mont., was brought back to life by the spirit of his dead dog, a university professor says!

The youngster, who was clinically dead for several minutes, described floating out of his body and floating down a tunnel where he met his deceased pet.

When the loving dog licked the little boy's face he returned to his body and awoke.

Many people who have had out of body experiences report having seen the spirits of departed friends and relatives — but this case shows that some have met beloved pets instead, said William Steinkamp, a professor of health sciences.

Prof. Steinkamp interviewed the boy, who he calls "Pete," about his bizarre out of body experience.

"It began in the afternoon when the boy and a friend went fishing off a trestle. Pete cast his fishing rod and the momentum carried him over the bridge," said the professor. "The boy fell into the water hitting his head on a rock. He was knocked unconscious."

Pete rose on the bottom of the lake and floated there for nearly 10 minutes while his friend ran for help. A policeman was able to drag Pete out of the water but by then he had no pulse and wasn't breathing. Pete was dead.

But unbeknownst to his rescuers, the little boy was at that moment having an out-of-body experience.

"I felt as I was floating in a special place where I had never been.

"I floated into a tunnel and I was inside it," Pete later revealed.

"I saw a wide tunnel. There I saw my old dog [illegible] me. I was really happy to see them since they had died a long time ago.

"Andy licked my hand and I petted him. Then he put his head right in mine and he ran to see me here.

"And that made me come back to my regular body and I woke up with people all around me."

Top geologist's warning: DIET or DIE!

Fat folks are cracking Earth's crust!

By KEVIN CREED, Weekly World News

NOME, Alaska — The human race is getting fatter year by year — and all those added pounds will soon crack the Earth's crust, causing a cave-in that could kill millions.

That's the disturbing news from a leading geologist who believes we have a simple choice: Diet or die!

Many of his colleagues agree. And some go so far as to say it should be considered a crime to be fat.

"In 1994, 23.3 percent of American males between 35 and 44 years old were overweight," says noted researcher Dr. Felix Cabbinger. "By 1997 that figure had climbed to an alarming 31.7 percent.

"Today, worldwide, the average person is 11 pounds heavier than the average person was in 1994.

"Those 11 pounds may not seem significant when they're on just one person. But when you compound them by six billion — the number of people in the world — it becomes clear that the pressure on our planet's crust has increased dramatically.

"Remember, the crust of the Earth is hollow. When enough force is placed on the surface, there will be a serious cave-in that could result in the deaths of thousands — maybe millions."

Swedish biophysicist Dr. Sven Wik agrees.

"Our Earth was simply not meant to withstand this kind of stress," said Dr. Wik, 52.

"Humans were designed to be lean and slim so they could chase down prey for food. But NOTED researcher Dr. Felix Cabbinger is urging world leaders to make it illegal to be overweight.

lowed itself to pull up the rotten fruit. It's unnatural and there will be a serious price to pay."

Dr. Cabbinger is urging world leaders to put through legislation in their countries making it illegal to be overweight. "'Heavy fines for heavy people' should be the slogan," said Dr. Cabbinger. "These irresponsible gluttons are putting everyone in the world at risk.

"It can't be allowed to continue."

Amnesia family baffles doctors

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Authorities are puzzling over the case of a family of five who were discovered wandering by a roadside — ALL suffering from total amnesia!

The parents, who appeared to be in their early 40s, carried no identification and were dressed in "vacation wear," according to hospital sources.

They and their children, a girl in her mid-teens and two boys ages roughly 8 and 10, showed no signs of having been in a motor vehicle accident and otherwise appeared to be in good health.

My Siamese twin won't let me marry the man I love!

Dear Dotti: My Siamese twin sister and I are joined at the chest and surgeons can't separate us without killing her. Up until now, we got along fine. Things changed when I met a wonderful man who asked me to marry him. I would walk down the aisle with my Prince Charming in a minute but my sister is jealous and refuses to go along. Doctor son wants to be a garbageman!

Dear Dotti: My 23 year old son will graduate from Harvard with a degree in economics this spring but he has no more ambition than the man in the moon. He's got a genius I.Q. of 210. He's set to graduate with honors. But the only thing he has on his mind is getting out of school and going to work with the local sanitation department. — as a garbageman. I get sick to the stomach just thinking about it, Dotti. What am I going to do? Mary in Dallas

MARY in Dallas

Dear Mary: Be grateful you've got a son who understands the value of honest work. Too many college kids think the world owes them a living. And they're the ones who wind up standing in the unemployment line at the age of 30 wondering why nobody will hire them.

Hubby won't put the toilet seat down after he's done!

Dear Dotti: My stupid husband is the world's worst when it comes to putting down the toilet seat after he uses the john. When nature called me the other night, I plopped myself down without checking the position of the seat and went straight down into the bowl. I'm furious, Dotti. Should I have another baby at age 71, Dotti?

Dear Dotti: I'm 71 and have been married to a younger man — he's 41 — for nine years. We have two children that I gave birth to in my early 40s. Now we are thinking about having another one but because of my age, we're not sure we can. Do you think we should try or have we had enough sons? — Dolores in Boston

Dear Dolores: Don't be senile. Having a child at the age of 71 is not only dangerous, it's insane.

My old geezer mom needs to start acting her age!

Dear Dotti: My mother is 84 years old and acts like she's a 24 year old groupie. She wears short skirts and listens to rap music. When friends come over she tries to speak our language and succeeds in sounding like a gabbering old fool. I've told her that she totally embarrasses me but she just won't stop it! EMMA in Garwood

Dear Emma: Lots of kids have mothers who refuse to act their age — but you aren't one of them. Your mother likes me, so just a couple hints: get rid of the outfits in her closet, stop music and talk with your friends. There's not a damn thing you can do about it.

Has Romeo dropped me like a bad habit?

Dear Dotti: I met a man at work and we started dating about four months ago. We've enjoyed each other's company and have spent a lot of time together. But for the last few days he has been acting distant and cold to me. I don't know what I should do? — Confused in Dayton

Dear Confused: Find another hobby. You've been dumped!

Not only are you smart — you're gorgeous, too!

Dear Dotti: In a recent column, you claimed that when the Good Lord gave out brains, He gave you a few extra helpings. Well I'd like to add to that and say that He didn't cheat you in the looks department, either! You're the greatest! — Bruce in Pasadena

NEW ORLEANS — Thanks to the miracle of transplant surgery and a dying boy's courage, a single heart has saved the lives of TWO children — and it's still beating today in the body of a grateful little girl!

Doctors say it's the first case in medical history in which one heart has been transplanted twice.

The touching saga began when 6-year-old Jeff Drammond, fatally ill with a brain tumor, donated his heart to his little friend, 5-year-old Doris Mursch.

Then, incredibly, the still-healthy heart was given to an-other dying child — 5-year-old Mary Lamont five months la when little Doris died in a tra bus accident.

"Doris had five months to live that she wouldn't have had it hadn't been for Jeff," said Mrs. Murach. "Now her death has made it possible for yet another child to live."

Doris and Jeff met in a Louisiana hospital for terminally ill children. They became inseparable pals. Jeff knew he was dying and that no hope could save the life of his friend.

"Kids have such courage," says Joan Murach. Doris added: "He specifically asked that his heart be donated to Doris."

"Miraculously, the blood and tissue match was perfect."

When Doris died, her donor heart did not — and would not — beat in the chest of the little boy recipient, Mary.

It was touch and go for Mary for a while immediately after the surgery, her body began to reject the heart. But thanks to anti-rejection drugs and the prayers of her family, she recovered.

Although little Mary is only 5, the precocious kindergartener is old enough to understand the significance of what's happened.

"I have a heart 'cause of Doris and Jeff," says Mary. "Like

CURE FOR COMMON COLD DISCOVERED!

Doctors have finally found a cure for the common cold — zinc lozenges!

That's the conclusion of researchers at the Cleveland Clinic, who found that people who took the bitter tasting lozenges got over their colds three days sooner than those who took a placebo.

Previous studies have shown that zinc fights a wide array of viruses.

"Zinc lozenges in this study worked better than anything out there," Dr. Michael Macknin, senior investigator for the study, said in an interview.

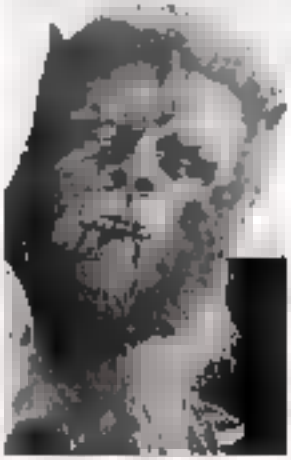
CUSTER BATTLEFIELD NATIONAL PARK: Location of Custer's last stand

AMERICA is the greatest nation on Earth — and it also boasts the best ghosts! Our country is packed [redacted] chain-rattling specters, werewolves and other unearthly beings, paranormal experts say. [redacted] is a guide to the 25 most haunted places in the U.S.:

By MICHAEL FORSYTH
World News Editor

1 Escondido, Ala. — A 40-mile stretch of I-65 near here is believed to be haunted due to hundreds of unexplained car wrecks — which have left 308 people injured and 23 killed. Locals believe the roadway was built over a Creek Indian burial ground.

2 Superstition Mountains, Ariz. — Even tough-as-nails Apaches avoid these mysterious hills, which Indian legends hold is the vortex of all evil. They believe a cave here leads to the center of the Earth and is guarded by a monstrous nine-headed snake!



DELAVAN, Wis.: Werewolf

3 Fayetteville, Ark. — A wide array of bizarre phenomena are routinely observed in the south town, including skyquakes (vibrations felt in the air), phantom panthers, UFOs, lake monsters and unexplicable train derailments.

4 Alcatraz, San Francisco, Calif. — This former prison, now a tourist site, is reportedly haunted by the tortured spirits of inmates. Visitors to the decaying island jail, closed since 1963, report hearing screams, moans and even ghostly harmonica music.

5 Clearwater, Fla. — Bizarre sightings of an [illegible] of 15 feet long. Other local sightings of the mysterious creature is estimated to weigh 3 tons.

6 Hull House, Chicago, Ill. — At the turn of the century, a "Devil Baby" with horns and a tail was reportedly born here, attracting quite a crowd to the area. Modern-day ghostbusters report photographing "extraordinary entities" at the site, which now houses a museum.

7 The Lincoln House, Indianapolis, Ind. — This manor was used to hide runaway slaves — and those who died there were buried in the basement. Sounds of breathing ghost are frequently heard down below and there is a lingering smell of rotting flesh.

8 Clinton, Iowa — Frequent visitors to this town include a ghostly World War II bomber and a 7-foot "cape man." A house near the lo-

9 New Orleans, La. — Long after her demise notorious voodoo Dorothée LaLaurie, who whipped people to death in her attic, is still a pain to neighbors. Passersby often say they hear bloodcurdling screams coming from her former home late at night.

10 Bachelor's Castle, Cape Elizabeth, Maine — This elegant estate is supposedly haunted by famed spiritualist Sylvester Bachelor, who died in 1892. Legend has it that he's being elevated just to prove that survival after death is really possible.

11 Hodgewood Swamp, Maine. — Sightings of giant snakes, birds, and Bigfoot are common. An ancient rock with indecipherable hieroglyphics, known as the Dighton Rocks, was discovered here.

12 Michigan Bell Telephone Co. Building, Grand Rapids, Mich. — The site was formerly home to a man who bludgeoned his wife to death with his wooden leg. Over the years, the couple's restless spirits make erratic calls from the building at night.

13 Kansas City, Mo. —

14 Custer Battlefield National Park, Mont. — Ghosts of ravaltjenos who were wiped out by Indians in the Battle of the Little Bighorn in 1876 still linger here and are often spotted by visitors.

15 New Jersey Pine Barrens — A favorite spot for dumping murder victims, the wilderness area, full of bugs and swamps, is the reputed haunt of the Jersey Devil, a monster which leaves bugs chewed tracks and lets loose blood-chilling cries.

16 Hudson Valley, N.Y. — This picturesque area was the setting for Washington Irving's tale about a headless horseman, The Legend of Sleepy Hollow — and residents swear they really DO see ghost riders.

17 New Hanover County Library, Wilmington, N.C. — The library is haunted by the ghost of a genealogist who often did research there. Workers complain of books moving around by themselves.

Peoria, Ohio. — A

hunting devil known as the devil of their costumes, who chase children. Despite an intense police manhunt, none of the evil clowns has ever been captured.

Weekly World News exclusive: The WORLD'S BIGGEST CROSSWORD!

Are terrorists trying to poison America's water?

Serena Sabak

Dear Serena: America is under attack from terrorists, that's one thing I'm certain of. I think most people agree with me when I say we're in for big trouble in the months ahead — and I'm not just talking about explosions and planes being shot down.

These terrorists are planning something on a big scale. I know a guy who says a multinational terrorist group is try to poison our country's water supply. Needless to say, that would be a tragedy far worse than anything we've faced before. Personally, I've been saving up as much food and water as possible so I can survive the attack. Please let me know exactly when it is going to happen. — Prepared for the Worst in Duncan

Dear Prepared: Your fears are sensible and well founded but fortunately the threat has been eliminated by undercover U.S. agents. The terrorists' team was to start with sewer water of the Colorado and then a small later poison water in Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana. But military forces were able to quickly defuse the evil plot just days before it was going to be hatched.

Dear Serena: My exterminator told me I need to have my house gassed for termites. This would involve moving out of my house for two days while they cover it with a big tent and shoot some deadly spray all through it. And it would cost me big bucks, at least $150. Does the estimate I got. To tell the truth I'm not sure I trust this guy and I haven't seen any termites in the house. So I'm turning to you for the truth — does my house have termites? — Unhappy Homeowner in Talla Hassee

Dear Unhappy: You were wise to write to me. Your house does not need to be treated for termites. The fact that you are dealing with a guy who has ripped off many people for work you don't need.

Dear Serena: I have an opportunity to quit my job as a teacher and become a wonder selling sausages in a traveling carnival. The pay is not as good but quite frankly I'm fed up with teaching and have been thinking about getting out. As you probably know, I'm single and, as of last week, totally unattached so there's nothing tying me down and I'd like to hit the road for a few years. Please look into your crystal ball and tell me what life is best for me. — Undecided in Minden

Dear Undecided: Join the carnival. If you don't do it now you'll always regret let ting the opportunity pass and you'll even meet a special lady when the carnival goes to Kansas.

Dear Serena: My step-father is driving me crazy. He's always getting into everything. Now my wife wants me to get rid of my antique dart collection or at least lock it up in a place I'll never get to look at it. I say our boy is smart enough to not hurt himself but my wife says she's afraid he could use one of those darts to put his eye out. Since you can look into the future can you tell us what we should do? — Collector in Scott City

Dear Collector: Your wife is right! Put the darts in a case in your bedroom, but not near your bed where your son can climb up and reach them. You're asking for trouble if you leave the collection downstairs — and your son may very well lose more than just an eye.

Dear Serena: I can't find my birth certificate anywhere. My mom says she knows where it is but every time I ask her about it she puts me off and says she'll look for it later. Boy gun attack scars farmer for life

Copyright © 1996 Weekly World News

Alone with a quick trigger finger snapped a Peruvian cane farmer with a toy gun — leaving him alive but scarred for life.

"It felt like a million needles in my face," said Pedro Herrera through a mouthful of gauze. "I screamed, it was like my face was on fire."

Peruvian doctors who examined Herrera say he has visions of ugly burn marks resembling pellet dots that covered over his face, the front of his neck and down his upper chest.

They say the marks are so shocking that he fears that people look on scars that will stay on him.

"It's like small craters all dotted all over his face and his neck," explained Dr. Fernando Rodriguez, a member of the research team that traveled to the remote Peruvian village of Pampas.

The hapless Herrera described his ordeal this way:

"I was hoeing my field," he said.

"I heard this sound like a thousand angry hornets. Whirr! Whirr! Whirr! Only louder.

"I looked around for the sound and I didn't see anything. Then I looked up."

Herrera said he saw a disk. The object hovering just a few hundred feet away. He said it was about the size of a small trailer, only flatter.

"I stood and watched," he said. "I was so scared I couldn't move."

Then, suddenly, the object opened fire with a ray gun — blasting Herrera's face.

World News Bureau

Then the spaceship fired a ray gun right into Herrera's face.

"It was like the sun only brighter," he said.

"I screamed and threw my hands up. That's the last thing I remember."

Herrera's wife said she heard her husband scream and ran to him in the field where she found him sprawled on his back, semi-unconscious, his face pockmarked.

She said she thought he had the plague and refused to touch him.

"I called to my son in the house, and told him to run to town for the doctor," she told authorities later.

"I stayed with my husband until help arrived."

Herrera says he has no lingering pain but he now lives inside.

"I hear noises like a radio out. They are there all the time and I cannot sleep."

Dr. Rodriguez said any member of the research team has speculated that Herrera has been "tagged" for future study.

"There is one theory that each of these pockmarks on his face is a separate implanted sensor that sends back signals to the spaceship," he explained.

"If I were Senor Herrera, I would be paranoid for an

Bible expert discovers Adam & Eve's last name

'MR. & MRS. YAHPRIMA'

By CHARLES GEORGE
Weekly World News

A Biblical scholar has finally answered one of the oldest questions in the history of mankind. He's discovered Adam and Eve's last name!

That's right. The famous first couple had a last name — and it was Yahprima, pronounced Ya-PRY-ma.

For centuries, experts and students of the Bible have argued over what Adam and Eve's last name was. Yahprima, said Bible scholar Jack Waughton of Kingview, Ore.

"It translates loosely into 'the first woman'."

Waughton said he's been interested in the historical subject ever since he was a young boy and asked his father what "Mrs." last name was.

"My father didn't have any idea, so he switched to Waughton said he was [illegible] humiliated and frustrated when he unconsciously wrote in an essay that Noah's last name was Yahprima.

"That was a big mistake on my part," he admitted. "But now, Waughton said.

"I was using information I had from an old article that had been printed in the past. I was eager to return to the limelight. I enjoyed writing it. And found Moses' last name. I should have exercised more caution."

He learned his lesson and made sure he had the facts right before proclaiming Yahprima as Adam and Eve's last name.

TV WEATHERMAN FIRED FOR DRUNKEN FORECASTING

DAZED and dehydrated drunk on Franz Warber learned his TV forecast complaints.

MUNICH, Germany — A TV weatherman has been kicked off the air — for drunken weather reporting!

Hapless Franz Warber was forced to admit he'd been drinking before appearing on his theater's news cast. During that broadcast he got his weather report so messed up that he forecast major thunderstorms for the next day when in reality it was going to be a bright and sunny day.

Because of the fouled up prediction, two festivals were postponed. At least six outdoor weddings were moved indoor and a towering cardboard cow nearly tipped over.

To make matters worse, because Warber was too drunk to appear on the air later that day, tapes of his erroneous 6 p.m. predictions were rebroadcast four more times.

By GEORGE PIKE

The next day — when thunderstorms were nowhere to be seen — furious viewers stormed the station.

"We postponed an outdoor concert based entirely on it being gloomy for six months," said one angry protester.

"We asked all the vendors to come back next weekend but for all we know it could be raining then."

"This weather would have been perfect for us."

Station owners, at first suspected Warber had after viewing tapes of his rebroadcast predictions realized they had a problem.

"The news producer made a mistake when he allowed Mr. Warber on the air that night," said red-faced station manager Gerhard Hubner. "I understand Mr. Warber was able to pass what disguise the fact that he was intoxicated — but unfortunately his weather forecasting abilities were severely impaired."

Warber issued a public apology for his drunken forecasting.

He has been suspended from on-air duties but said he hopes to get his job back by January of 1987.

Secrets of how any woman can get to the top in business

— BY A GAL WHO MADE IT!

Successful women have discovered secrets that helped them to become tops in their fields — and you can use these secrets to make YOUR dreams come true, says an expert.

"Successful women make their own success," says March Travis, a top exec who has gathered the secrets to getting ahead from stories of successful female colleagues.

She recommends following these winning tips:

• Look for opportunities and act on them — the smart go with your instincts. If you find yourself thinking, "Hey, I could do that," follow your inner voice.

• Be sure of what you want — Do you want to own your own business? Do you want to get your high school or college degree? Do you want to be president of the PTA or to be the best wife and mother you can be? Once you focus on what you want, you can make it happen.

• Set realistic, specific goals — Success doesn't happen overnight. You have to plan it one step at a time. Decide what steps you must take to get there.

Reaching each little goal will help you achieve your big goal.

• Form a network of people who can help you — Surrounding yourself with men and women who are successful in your field will make it easier for you to succeed because you'll not only learn from them but you'll get help from them along the way.

Don't be afraid to make friends and then ask for help.

Also look for local organizations, particularly groups of women business owners. Try to attend their meetings and mingle with members.

• Be a risk taker — Successful women take chances. They don't plunge into things foolishly. But once they've done their homework, they go full speed ahead.

Because these women were confident in them-

Gun-toting teen cleared of any wrongdoing!

NEW YORK CITY — A teen who brought a loaded gun to school has been cleared of any wrongdoing by a state court — because they say a school security aide had no right to search the boy's locker!

The ruling has stirred anger among New Yorkers, particularly top attorney Paul Crotty who expressed his outrage saying, "The danger is that you're going to have to start treating kids who carry guns in school as though they are the ones who should be protected as opposed to the kids in school."

Five easy steps to make yourself invisible!

By RANDY JEFFRIES Weekly World News

PARIS — Any normal person can become invisible at will by using a simple formula that has been practiced since ancient times!

That's the astonishing contention of author Paul Chalet, whose book Practical Threatening Technique has whipped up a cyclone of controversy in Europe since its release last month.

Outraged civic groups are trying to prevent the book's publication in America, calling it "irresponsible" and "potentially dangerous."

But here, exclusively for Weekly World News readers, Chalet offers the easy step-by-step procedure that he claims will allow anyone of average intelligence to freely come and go anywhere without being seen.

1. Practice being silent. "Invisibility begins in the mind," says Chalet. "Most people talk too much."

To become invisible you must learn to resist the temptation to offer your opinion all the time. Learn to shut up and listen."

2. Wear drab clothes. The idea is to downplay what the experts called "charisma" — the qualities that take attention away from you. Dressing in bland, colorless clothes causes others to ignore you. That's the beginning of the disappearance process."

3. Spend 10 minutes a day imagining yourself as invisible. "Visualize yourself sitting in the midst of a group of people and not being seen.

"That which we hold in the mind will eventually manifest itself on the outer plane."

4. Eat a diet rich in green beans. "Try to eat a cup of green beans a day — but don't overdo it. No more than four cups."

5. Trust the process. "Begin to practice! Go to a [redacted] ... It is [redacted] ... [redacted] ... [redacted] ...

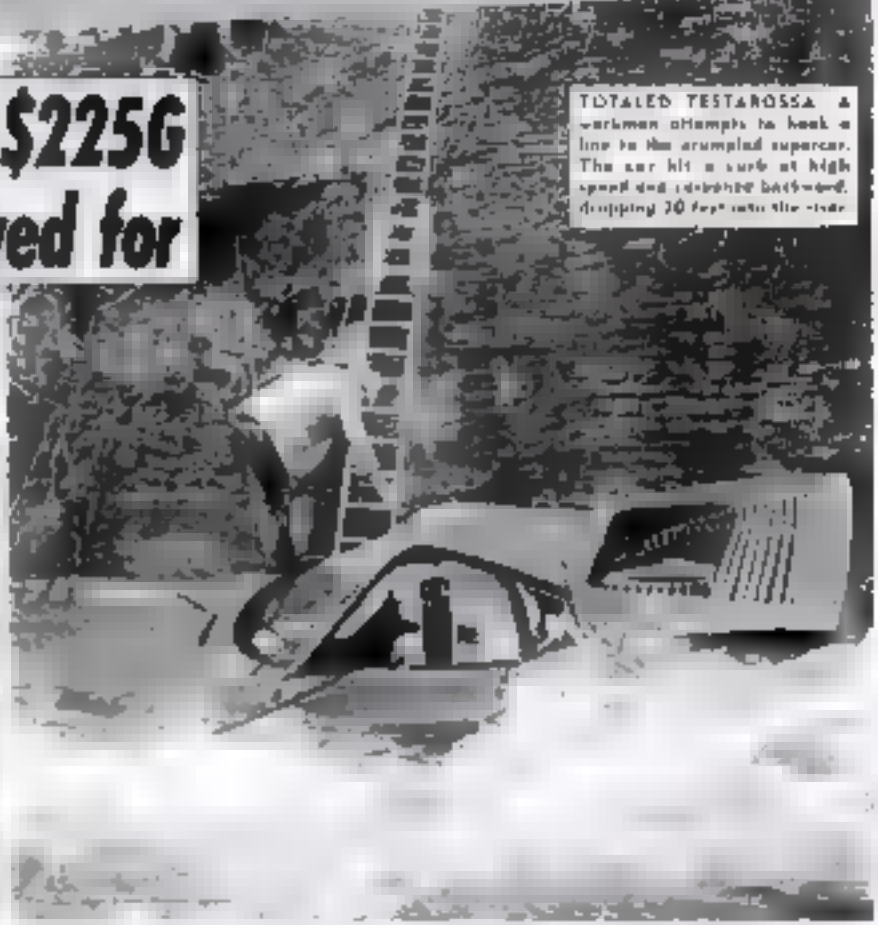
Businessmen wreck $225G Ferrari they borrowed for cancer boy's ride!



TOTALED TESTAROSSA A workman attempts to hook a line to the crumpled supercar. The car hit a curb at high speed and rebounded backward, dropping 20 feet into the river.

PONTYPOOL, England — Bighearted Mark Pearson and Simon Jenkins borrowed a $225,000 Ferrari Testarossa to give a 6-year-old cancer victim the ride of a lifetime — and promptly drove the high-powered supercar into a river!

Locally the joyriders took the unidentified boy home before they blasted through the countryside at 120 mph, clipped a curb, careened 150 yards backward, plowed through a hedge, flattened a row of trees and dropped 20 feet into the river.

Neither man was seriously injured in the accident, although they had a lot of explaining to do when the owner of the car, David Lewis, found out what happened.

"They must have been driving the car like maniacs," said Lewis, who owns an engineering firm here. "Thank God that little boy wasn't in it at the time.

"I would have thought both men would have known better. It's incredible they are not dead."

The distraught Ferrari owner continued: "After the boy was taken for a spin his dad says came to say they were overcome with joy.

"But a couple of hours later the police called saying my Ancestor of Jesus' killer slapped with wrongful death lawsuit!

by Harrison STEEL
Roselyn World News

ROME, Italy — A man who claims to be a descendant of Jesus Christ has slapped a businessman he says is kin to Pontius Pilate with a wrongful death suit — for ordering the execution of his remote ancestor!

Irving R. David claims that olive oil magnate Giorgio Pilatus owes him $10 million in damages, plus reparations for the pain and suffering he and his family have endured for generations.

"Mr. Pilatus may not be directly responsible for the horrible death inflicted on my beloved relative, but he got the ear of corrupted Judea. His ancestor Pontius Pilate certainly was," argues the 38-year-old Detroit truck driver.

Dark-eyed Mr. David, who sports a long, full beard, bears a definite resemblance to medieval European portraits of Christ.

He says that an "oral tradition" in his family holds that Jesus of Nazareth was an ancestor. "It was never a matter of debate," he recalls. "Whenever I misbehaved, mother would tell me I ought to be good, like our forefather Jesus."

Mr. David was always fascinated by the story, and about five years ago he asked a renowned genealogist to investigate.

To his surprise, the expert found substantial evidence that the Israeli man was in fact a direct descendant of Christ.

Genealogist Antonio Citarella posts posts projects from outraged religious leaders who insist that Jesus died childless.

"The Bible never explicitly states that Jesus was married, but it never says he WASN'T either," he says. "Certainly, it was unheard of at the time for a man that age to be unmarried.

The genealogist used meticulous records kept by the Romans to link the New Testament's Pilate to the modern-day Pilatus family.

Mr. David says he believes the $10 million figure based on the fact that, in addition to being Christianity's Messiah, Jesus was a trained carpenter.

"At that time, the life expectancy was about 40 years, so that's about what it would have left before he would have left behind an estate worth the equivalent of roughly $10,000 in modern U.S. currency.

Figuring at a modest annual interest rate compounded over 2,000 years, that would come to about $10 million today.

As attorney for super wealthy Pilatus has not decided the suit. Said recently in a Rome court as mafia and financial Loving husband turns bad — so he can join his dead wife in HELL!

SWINGING Rita Barabul died in a car crash on May 25

By KEVIN CREED / Weekly World News

MIAMI, Fla. — When swinging sinner Rita Barabul died, her loyal husband changed from a church-going, clean-living nice guy into a hard-drinking, womanizing wastrel — so he could be with his beloved wife for eternity in Hell!

"I can't stand the thought of going to Heaven knowing Rita won't be there," the widower said at his wife's funeral.

"And the way she lived, there's no way she made it through the Pearly Gates."

Relatives say Ed Barabul, 34, did a complete turnabout on the day his wife got drunk, crashed her car and died on May 25, at the age of 33. The once-respected model citizen turned in a life of debauchery and sin.

The rest of his short life was spent in a tragically heroic effort to damn his own soul. He died of acute alcohol poisoning just two months after his wife's death.

"Those two were always an odd couple," says Ed's brother Ben, 34. "Ed was Mr. Goody-two-shoes. Rita was quite frankly — a gentleman's trump.

"While Ed went to church and donated his time and money to charities, Rita would be hitting the bars, cruising men by the age of 15."

up men. But he loved her like crazy.

"When she died, Ed started downing the booze like there was no tomorrow. He invited strangers get into her fights, groped married women and used the Lord's name in vain constantly.

"And when we brought our minister and some of the congregation over to his house to try to get him back to church, he wouldn't even open the door. He actually answered us from his window."

Sadly, after being repeatedly told to "Hell out," Barabul's friends and family eventually left him alone. His cleaning lady found his body on his living room floor. Police suspect that he knew he was dying because they found a note beside his corpse.

It said: "I'm not sorry for any of the bad things I did to anyone ever. I'm on my way to see Rita."

Barabul's minister expressed the ultimate irony in his funeral address. "Mrs. Barabul didn't die immediately in that wreck.

"Paramedics say she lived for a minute or two. What if she repented and asked God's forgiveness in those last moments?"

"If so, Ed Barabul will be in Hell without her — forever."

HERO SHEEP GIVES LIFE TO SAVE DYING MOM!

By SANDY JEFFERIES Weekly World News

PERTH, Australia — Diabetic Kathy Stokes owes her life to a heroic sheep who literally ran himself to death to save her!

The family pet, Mr. Woolly, simply ran his heart out pulling her two children, Mikey and Mary Stokes, 16 miles in a toy cart to get her life-saving medicine.

Doctors say the brave animal died of exhaustion after covering the distance, at speed, in an astonishing 75 minutes.

It all began after Mrs. Stokes returned to her Darling Mountain Valley home from the pharmacy at the town of Northam.

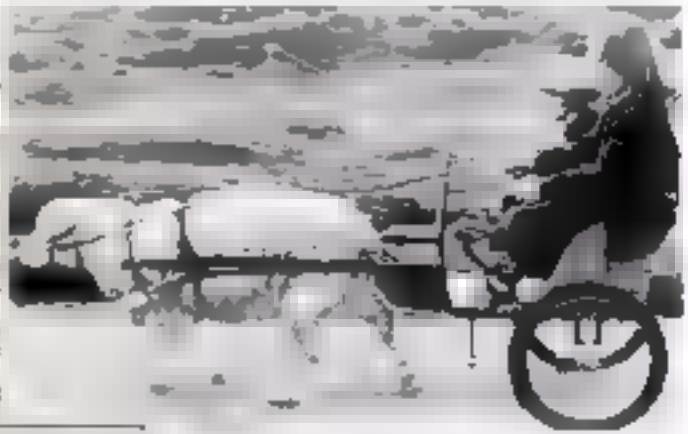
"I thought I had enough insulin, but the widowed mom. "But I didn't. By the time I reached the house I was beginning to feel my blood sugar rising. I was getting drowsy and unconscious. There was no time to lose."

Mikey, six 7-year old, had an idea of using the sheep cart. It seemed like an impossible idea at first. My late husband Rod built the cart as a toy for the children. It was quite small for Mr. Woolly, but between the house and the barn. But sheep don't have the endurance to pull carts for long distances."

However, armed with the grim reality of diabetic coma and death, the children hitched their friend to the cart and started up the mountain to town.

"Mr. Woolly seemed to know we needed to get there fast," said 9-year-old Mary. "Mikey and I both knew that we thought we'd have a better chance of finding the medicine if both of us searched."

But there was no need for a search. When the exhausted sheep staggered into the town of Northam and collapsed, the children and villagers found the medicine and rushed it to Mrs. Stokes.



DURING August hours Mr. Woolly pulled Mikey and Mary Stokes for short distances.

Family pet pulls cart 16 miles — then drops dead!

Veterinarian Ed Gadney was called to see to the dying animal. "There was nothing I could do," said Dr. Gadney. "He was completely exhausted and there was no way I could get him to his car with the insulin.

Mrs. Stokes was found unconscious, close to death. But the insulin pulled her through.

"I'm grateful to be alive," she said. "But I've lost a beloved family member."

Lost your desire for sex? 7 ways to put passion back in your love life!

PASSIONATE lovers Sharon Stone and William Baldwin in a scene from the movie Bliss.

Many married people are hit by a sudden loss of sexual desire that lasts for weeks or months — but if your mate is in the sexual doldrums you can re-light his or her fire if you know how!

By JENNIFER BROOKES
Weekly World News

"The American Psychiatric Association estimates that 20 percent of the population, both male and female, have little or no desire for sexual intercourse at times," said noted psychiatrist Dr. Anthony Pietropinto.

Dr. Pietropinto interviewed 22 leading sex therapists in researching a new book he has co-authored entitled Not Tonight Dear: How to Reawaken Your Sexual Desire.

Depression and worry are the biggest causes of inhibited sexual desire, he said. Money problems, problems at work, a death in the family or even a new baby at home can dampen the urge so much that the partner just can't have an romance.

Also, it's common for sex to become humdrum for couples who have been sleeping together for a long while — though the age of the couple matters less than the age of the relationship.

When one partner has lost his or her desire for sex and the other is hurt, it can be very frustrating for the one who's still turned on.

So how do you get the spark back in your mate's tank?

Dr. Pietropinto offers these suggestions:

● Don't nag or complain about being deprived of sex.

● Concentrate on the quality of your lovemaking, not the quantity.

● Boost your sexual posture. Place an electronic scale in your home or a mirror — or create a seductive atmosphere in your own bedroom.

● Diagnose a particularly memorable sexual moment and [illegible]

● Make your partner feel desired — pay plenty of compliments.

clothes in bed — or nothing at all. "The more desirable you make yourself as a person and as a lover, the more your mate is likely to once again feel that old strong desire for you," said Dr. Pietropinto.

HOW TO KEEP YOUR DOG FROM GETTING YOU SUED ... and other canine legal questions

Are you responsible if you run over a dog? If a parade turns up at your doorstep, can you make it your pet? What can you do if you buy an unhealthy dog?

Here, for Weekly World News readers, are the answers to these and other legal questions about canines. The information comes from Mary Randolph, author of the new book Dog Law.

Q. Will I have to pay damages if a child gets hurt after stepping on my dog's tail?

A. Probably not, because the child provoked it.

Q. What can I do if I buy a dog and it's sickly?

A. Return it to your dog or your money back. If you get neither within 10 days, take your case to Small Claims Court.

Q. Can I deduct my dog's medical expenses from my federal income tax?

A. No. The only time the dog is a dependent, but the Internal Revenue Service doesn't.

Q. If a dog turns up on my doorstep, must I do anything I want with it?

A. No. If you don't want the dog, you must notify animal control authorities. If you do, the law may still require you to have it cared for the pound — but you can ask for first chance at adoption.

Q. Can I have my dead dog in the backyard?

A. Probably not. Most towns and cities prohibit burying animals anywhere but established cemeteries. However, you may be able to do it outside of city limits.

If you own unruly hostile neighbors, such as keeping the animal away from water supplies.

Q. Am I responsible if I let my neighbor's dog walk my pet?

A. Yes, if you were aware of the problem by having his dog roam the neighborhood, you'll probably have to pay him directly.

Q. Can I sue if I'm bitten by a pedigree dog?

A. Usually not. Many states exempt police from liability if their dogs bite someone while working.

Q. Will my homeowner's or renter's insurance pay for the damage if my dog bites someone?

A. Yes. A standard policy usually provides $100,000 to $300,000 of liability coverage. But after the first bite, the company will usually cancel the insurance or exclude your dog from further coverage.

JUDGE RULES THAT THIS DRUG PUSHER IS TOO PRETTY FOR JAIL ... and lets him go FREE!

NEWSPAPERS around the world are reporting on this outrageous case.

By SANDY JEFFERIS / Weekly World News

BRISTOL, England — "I'm too good-looking to go to jail," sobbed a convicted drug dealer, afraid of being raped by other convicts — and incredibly, the judge let him walk with a measly 15 months suspended sentence!

In the most outrageous case to hit the British courts in years, male model Brett Warburton, 23, slapped away with a mere slap on the wrist after being arrested at a nightclub with 40 tablets of the drug Ecstasy and about $2,400 stuffed down the front of his pants.

He was convicted of possession of a Class A drug with intent to supply — a crime that could well have earned him six months in the slammer.

While the pouting pusher blubbered away, his attorney appealed to the judge, telling him, "My client is terrified of going to prison," and suggesting that the dope's sexy good looks were bound to make him a victim of prison rape.

And after listening to the cry-baby plea for pity, Judge Peter Thomas cobbled the hunky pretty-boy, ruling to waive jail time.

Angry Britons are up in arms over the soft-on-crime decision.

Anti-drugs activist Paul Betts, whose daughter Leah died after taking an Ecstasy pill, slammed the ruling saying: "The judicial system needs a kick up the backside."

Highway workers P.O.'d at having to pick up jugs filled with truckers' urine!

RAWLINS, Wyo. — Highway clean-up workers say they're sick and tired of having to pick up bottles, milk cartons and other containers — filled with truckers' urine!

Rawlins Police Chief Tony Rose said drivers who sleep in their trucks and don't feel like doing outside to relieve themselves will urinate in soda pop bottles, juice bottles, water jugs or even sealable sandwich bags and then dump the filled containers by the road.

"The people who do the Adopt-A-Highway for one stretch found about 82 of them in that mile they pick up and they pretty much refused to do it anymore," Chief Rose said.

KILLER VULTURES

... attack humans & tear the flesh from their bones while victims are STILL ALIVE!

EL KERE, Ethiopia — The dreaded killer vultures of East Africa that attack and devour human beings are thriving — and will soon become a major threat to every man, woman and child in the U.S.!

That's the sobering prediction of noted Australian ornithologist Dr. Jon Lang who has been studying the fearsome birds since 1975.

"Gone are the days when vultures were just scavengers, waiting for things to die and feeding on carcasses," said Dr. Lang, 51.

"The strain known as the marta vulture evolved here, probably as a result of the widespread starvation that has always plagued this country.

"One sub-species found that humans in a weakened condition could be easily killed.

"From there, it was a small step up to banding together and killing healthy people.

"Through natural selection, the marta vultures developed sharper beaks and talons, stronger muscles, lightning-fast reactions and a relentless killer instinct.

"Most vultures are solitary except when eating. But these birds band together in flocks Sometimes as many as 50 will descend on a person and rip him to shreds. They'll often begin feasting on a man's flesh and vital organs while he's still alive."

Dr. Lang said he's alarmed by the rapid spread of the marta vulture.

Back in the mid-'70s, they were an isolated species with a range limited to the Italo region of the Awash River valley.

By the early '80s they were seen throughout Ethiopia and had filtered into Kenya, Sudan, Somalia and Uganda.

Today Africa is infested with them and they're migrating to other countries.

The respected expert says they've already been spotted in remote areas of Florida's Everglades and the Louisiana bayou.

"By the turn of the century we could be seeing as many as 1,000 marta vultures inhabiting a year," said Dr. Lang.

Golfer's death caused by rat in the rough, claim doctors!

DUBLIN, Ireland — A rat killed golfer David Hadley, 48, when it ran up his trouser leg while he was looking for a lost ball — and gave him a deadly disease.

The businessman was playing with friends when he jumped into a ditch at the first hole and the pint-sized rat shot up his leg and urinated on him. His golf partners urged him to wash up immediately, but he insisted on finishing his favorite game first.

Doctors believe he touched his leg before he showered a few hours later and their symbol spirals, bringing deadly Weil's disease, carried by rats and passed on in their urine, to his mouth by way of his fingers.

WIVES WHO CHARGE THEIR HUBBIES $$$ FOR SEX!

"The days of something for nothing are over!"

That is what millions of women all across America are saying to their hubbies as they CHARGE them for romance!

"Many young wives today are refusing to make love to their mates unless they are duly compensated," according to sociologist Ann Graham-Martinelli of Cambridge, Mass.

"Often this pattern begins while the couple is dating or living together and simply continues after they wed."

Dr. Graham-Martinelli credits changing workplace demographics and shifting sexual roles with having spurred the shocking trend.

"In previous generations men were the breadwinners. They provided their mates with food, shelter and clothing — in return, women offered them sexual companionship," she notes.

"Now many women are working outside the home and bringing in their own income. So they are demanding that the unwritten terms of the marital contract be renegotiated."

Dr. Graham-Martinelli estimates only a small percentage of women — roughly 4.5 million — are charging for sex, but the number is growing.

Here are some cases she uncovered:

Julie, a 31-year-old administrative assistant married to a New York City Transit Police officer, charges her husband Tim $40 for each sexual encounter.

"We do it about three times a week on average so that's an extra $150 in my pocketbook," she boasts.

The fund is used exclusively on items for herself, such as clothing, jewelry and a private nest egg in the event of divorce.

She says she's not "into" sex. "This gives me an incentive."

Karen, a curvy 25-year-old model, charges her fiancé Marc $100 for each liaison — and insists that he's getting "a bargain."

Ann Graham-Martinelli

"If I were a professional call girl, I would be pulling down $300 to $500 for the same thing," says the Los Angeles woman.

"Why should I provide these services for free?"

She admits her husband-to-be isn't exactly crazy about the idea.

"He grumbles. But whenever he gets frisky, I say, 'If you wanna play, you've gotta pay.' And he goes right for his wallet."

'If you wanna play, you've gotta pay,' says one enterprising housewife!

arms and show their commitment to upholding the Second Amendment," declared Christopher Pailey, president of the Nashville-based Citizens for an Armed and Safe America (CASA).

Pailey was inspired by the success of Bring Your Parents to Work Day and Take Your Daughter to Work Day.

"The annual event helps demonstrate the wide variety of jobs open to women, the gun advocate hopes the new event will highlight the many different types of American gun owners.

"The old stereotype of the beer-guzzling redneck 'gun nut' in a 'shock of hell' has long since been replaced by millions of gun owners who keep two or more semiautomatic handguns at home for their own protection."

Pailey hopes to see everything from secretaries bringing dainty, purse-size pistols to factory workers toting hunting rifles.

"This is appalling," fumed one. "It's going to intimidate a lot of people and possibly result in injuries and deaths."
